To Whom It May Concern:

I was so impressed with the Final Showcase presented by the Children's Theatre Company. I was amazed to see how professional the children were, starting from the youngest age group up. There was a great energy of warmth and support from Mehr and her staff and you could see the results of this by the children's confidence onstage.

As I had the privilege to sit in on the audition process it was astounding to see some of the shy, timid kids from the audition onstage with such confidence and talent. They had come so far in those few months! The music was wonderful and the children were bursting with pride and joy. It was truly a joy to watch.

It is refreshing to see the CTC showcases as they are producing lots of original work and the added touch of children presenting quotes on stage from world leaders and poets who have inspired them. The themes of community, diversity and social change are present and are really special and are such an integral part of their work. Watching the performance is more than entertaining, it is enlightening. To hear those quotes and see these amazing kids really working together towards a common goal is really something else.

Sincerely,
